E

E is an eagle, of birds styled the king,
Which far above all human sight on the wing,
With eye that can gaze on the Sun marks
his prey,
And, darting below, lamb or kid bears away.

F

F is the Fox, artful, treach'rous, and sly ;
Who visits the henroost, I need not say
why :

He'd fain steal the fowls, but can't get his prey,

For fast are the doors : away, Sir, away !

J

J is a Jay, Sir, a chattering bird,

Which some of my readers have probably heard ;

But though he speaks plainly, remember he can

Say nothing but what has been taught him
by man.

j

K

K, I presume, is the famed Kangaroo,
Possessing such strength and agility too,
That ten feet, or twelve, at one time he
oft bounds,
And leaves far behind him both hunters and hounds.

L

L is the Lion, great monarch of beasts ;
Who never invites little boys to his feasts ;
And were he to call them, I safely may say,
From his terrible roar they would scamper
away.

I

M

M is a tiny and timid poor Mouse,
That dreads more the cat than all else in the house ;
And sometimes, we know 'tis her mournful
mishap,
To be seiz'd by Grimalkin, or caught in a trap.

m

Handwritten text in a column on the right side of the page, consisting of approximately 25 lines of cursive script. The text is mostly illegible due to fading and blurring.

N

O

Publ. April 1877 by John Harris, St Pauls Church Y.

N

N is the Nightingale, whose dulcet lay,
Attention excites at the close of the day,
Of solitude fond, she her strains will prolong,
And cheer the dull night with her soft plaintive song.

n

A large, bold, black capital letter 'O' with a white center, serving as a section header.

O is an Owl, which the Ancients all gave To Minerva, because she looks solemn and grave ;

The depth of her wisdom I really can't tell,

But in catching of mice she is said to excel.

A large, bold, black capital letter 'O' with a white center, identical to the one above.

P

P is a Parrot, from distant climes brought,
And by perseverance successfully taught,
To chatter, to whistle, to laugh, or to sing “Come put on the Kettle,” or “Long live the King.”

p

A large, ornate, black capital letter 'Q' with a decorative tail that curves downwards and to the right.

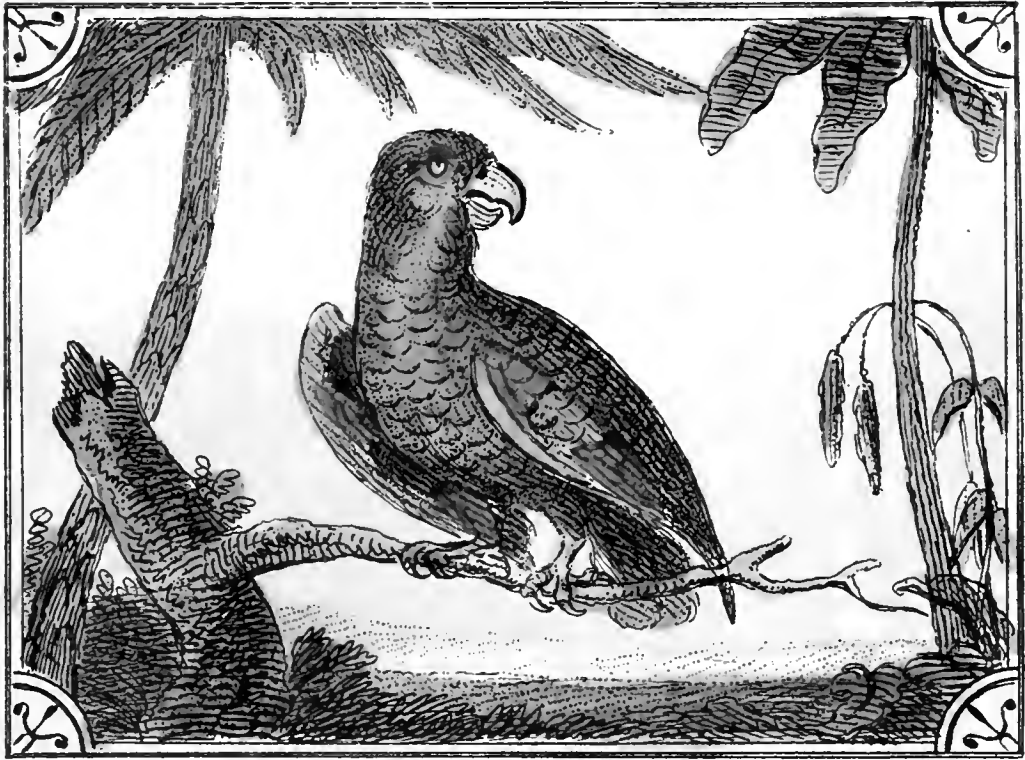

Q is a Quail, hark ! how plaintive its cry !
Beware, thou poor bird, for the fowler is nigh ;

His aim is so sure, and his net so well spread,

Thou soon wilt be numb'ed, alas ! with the dead.

A large, ornate, black capital letter 'Q' with a decorative tail that curves downwards and to the right.

R

R is the Robin, a nice little fellow, Whose breast is so ruddy, whose song is so mellow ;
In Autumn we often with pleasure regard
him,
And when Winter frowns, with our crumbs
we reward him.

S

S is a Squirrel, so active and free,
Who, nuts to procure, springs from this to
that tree ;
And whether at freedom or housed in a cage,
Is prone by mild temper good-will to engage.
